

Follow-Up Cadence

Use planned, respectful follow-up to stay present without turning persistence into pressure.

Use this guide while watching, practicing, and reviewing. Write notes in your own words, then confirm live procedures against the current SOP.

Learning objectives

- Apply the follow-up cadence
- Choose a relevant reason for each contact
- Record every attempt and next action
- Recognize when to pause or stop outreach

Key ideas

- Every follow-up should add context or make the next step easier
- Honor opt-outs and communication preferences
- Use multiple approved channels when appropriate
- Consistency matters more than one aggressive burst

Practice and reflection

- Explain the main idea of Follow-Up Cadence without reading a script.
- Name one behavior you can demonstrate in your next seller or team interaction.
- Write one question you still need a manager or current SOP to answer.
- Record the next action you will take and when you will take it.

Source of truth

Current written SOP, role sheet, offer letter, and manager direction control when live procedures or role terms differ from training.

Quick review

Use these prompts for retrieval practice. Answer first, then compare your response with the guide.

1. According to the text, where do real estate deals actually happen?
In the follow-up process
2. In the context of seller leads, what does 'not ready today' typically mean?
The timing has not lined up yet or the situation is not urgent enough
3. On day one of the BMH follow-up cadence, what action is taken after the initial call?
Logging notes and scheduling the follow-up
4. On day four of the BMH cadence, the follow-up call should reference what?
The previous conversation
5. What specific question is used during the day thirty follow-up call?
"Any changes on your end?"
6. What is the primary focus of the first call with a seller?
Discovery and qualification

Manager review notes
