

Closing and Deal Engineering

Prepare and present an offer as a clear next step while protecting accuracy, consent, and handoff quality.

Use this guide while watching, practicing, and reviewing. Write notes in your own words, then confirm live procedures against the current SOP.

Learning objectives

- Prepare the information needed for an offer
- Present terms cleanly
- Identify unresolved decision barriers
- Confirm the next action without pressure

Key ideas

- A strong close starts with accurate discovery
- State what is known and what still requires confirmation
- Let the seller evaluate the tradeoff
- Document the decision and exact next step

Practice and reflection

- Explain the main idea of Closing and Deal Engineering without reading a script.
- Name one behavior you can demonstrate in your next seller or team interaction.
- Write one question you still need a manager or current SOP to answer.
- Record the next action you will take and when you will take it.

Source of truth

Current written SOP, role sheet, offer letter, and manager direction control when live procedures or role terms differ from training.

Quick review

Use these prompts for retrieval practice. Answer first, then compare your response with the guide.

1. Why should the closing stage ideally be the easiest part of a successful sales process?

Because the rapport, discovery, and objection handling have already been completed successfully

2. The close is best described as the _____ that makes the decision official.

Formal agreement

3. How does an SDR's discovery work directly support the acquisition team during the close?

It provides the specific information and documentation the team needs to structure the offer

4. Why is it important for an SDR to understand how the closing process works? (Select all that apply)

It allows them to help with follow-ups; It helps them perform better discovery for the acquisition team

5. What specific benefits are typically included in a cash offer presentation? (Select all that apply)

Closing on the seller's timeline; Handling paperwork; Requiring no repairs or fees

6. What is the first step the acquisition team takes when a seller objects to the offer price?

Acknowledging the seller's concern with empathy

Manager review notes
