

Seller FAQ Decoder

Answer common seller questions through the three lenses of trust, fairness, and simplicity.

Use this guide while watching, practicing, and reviewing. Write notes in your own words, then confirm live procedures against the current SOP.

Learning objectives

- Identify the concern behind a common question
- Explain the direct-sale tradeoff
- Answer clearly without overpromising
- Return to the seller's stated priorities

Key ideas

- Answer the question that was asked before adding detail
- Use specific process facts instead of vague reassurance
- If an answer varies by deal, say so
- Confirm whether the answer resolved the seller's concern

Practice and reflection

- Explain the main idea of Seller FAQ Decoder without reading a script.
- Name one behavior you can demonstrate in your next seller or team interaction.
- Write one question you still need a manager or current SOP to answer.
- Record the next action you will take and when you will take it.

Source of truth

Current written SOP, role sheet, offer letter, and manager direction control when live procedures or role terms differ from training.

Quick review

Use these prompts for retrieval practice. Answer first, then compare your response with the guide.

1. Beyond memorization, what is the primary goal of learning how to answer common seller questions?

To understand the underlying concern and respond with confidence in your own voice.

2. What are the three fundamental drivers behind almost every seller question?

Trust, fairness, and simplicity.

3. A seller asking "How does this work?" is primarily looking for ____.

Simplicity

4. When explaining the basic process to a seller, what four steps should be highlighted?

Initial conversation, property evaluation, cash offer, and closing.

5. Why should an explanation of "how it works" be kept short?

The seller wants to know the basic flow without a complex ten-minute explanation.

6. What is the underlying motivation when a seller asks how the offer price was determined?

They want to know the offer is based on a logical process rather than a random number.
