

The BMH Offer Playbook

Explain how a direct property purchase exchanges maximum retail price for speed, certainty, convenience, and an as-is sale.

Use this guide while watching, practicing, and reviewing. Write notes in your own words, then confirm live procedures against the current SOP.

Learning objectives

- Explain the four offer pillars
- Describe ARV and repair-cost inputs
- Compare direct sale and traditional listing tradeoffs
- Present the offer without promising an outcome

Key ideas

- The offer is a solution with tradeoffs, not a claim to be the highest price
- Use plain English when explaining the math
- Confirm the seller values the benefits before positioning them
- Do not invent property values or repair estimates

Practice and reflection

- Explain the main idea of The BMH Offer Playbook without reading a script.
- Name one behavior you can demonstrate in your next seller or team interaction.
- Write one question you still need a manager or current SOP to answer.
- Record the next action you will take and when you will take it.

Source of truth

Current written SOP, role sheet, offer letter, and manager direction control when live procedures or role terms differ from training.

Quick review

Use these prompts for retrieval practice. Answer first, then compare your response with the guide.

1. What is the primary way BMH Group explains their offer to homeowners in 'plain English'?

They buy houses for cash, as-is, with no repairs, agents, commissions, or waiting.

2. Why does a cash offer provide more 'certainty' to a seller than a traditional bank-financed offer?

It eliminates the risk of the deal falling through due to loan approval or underwriting failures.

3. Traditional home sales often require an appraisal contingency; how does BMH Group handle this?

They do not require an appraisal contingency because they do not use bank loans.

4. What is the typical underwriting wait time for a bank loan that BMH Group avoids?

45 days.

5. Under an 'as-is' agreement, who is responsible for handling major issues like foundation cracks or leaking roofs?

BMH Group.

6. What type of extreme property condition involving 'stuff piled to the ceiling' does the guide explicitly mention BMH Group handles?

Hoarding situations.
