

Sales Pipeline and Stage Ownership

Move leads through the pipeline with a clear purpose, complete notes, and an owner at every stage.

Use this guide while watching, practicing, and reviewing. Write notes in your own words, then confirm live procedures against the current SOP.

Learning objectives

- Describe the purpose of each pipeline stage
- Identify the exit criteria for stages 1 through 4
- Use the five-step conversation framework
- Keep every active lead tied to a next action

Key ideas

- A stage describes what is true now, not what you hope will happen
- Do not advance a lead before the exit criteria are met
- Document the reason for every stage change
- The handoff begins only after qualification and discovery are complete

Practice and reflection

- Explain the main idea of Sales Pipeline and Stage Ownership without reading a script.
- Name one behavior you can demonstrate in your next seller or team interaction.
- Write one question you still need a manager or current SOP to answer.
- Record the next action you will take and when you will take it.

Source of truth

Current written SOP, role sheet, offer letter, and manager direction control when live procedures or role terms differ from training.

Quick review

Use these prompts for retrieval practice. Answer first, then compare your response with the guide.

1. How many total stages comprise the BMH Sales Pipeline?

Six stages.

2. What is the primary objective regarding leads that are not moving through the pipeline stages?

Disqualify them and move on.

3. Which specific pipeline stages are owned and managed by the sellers?

Stages 1 through 4.

4. Pipeline Stage 1: ____.

Lead Capture

5. What is the entry point for a lead in Stage 1 (Lead Capture)?

A lead entering the system from a source like marketing, cold calling, or referrals.

6. What information is typically available when a lead first enters Stage 1?

Basics like name, phone number, property address, and minor source details.

Manager review notes
